IMPORTANT TIPS ON STUDYING MASTER'S DEGREE AT ST JOHN'S UNIVERSITY OF TANZANIA

Master of Business Administration

Why Studying A Masters In Business Will Enhance Your Career?

Choosing to study business at st john's university, whether you do so in general or by specializing in one of the subjects (finance, accounting, management, human resources management, corporate management and economics), will be one of your wise move of your education pathway. Business graduates have always ranked well in terms of employment, salary, and job satisfaction compared to their peers – studying for a master's in business, whether an MBA or other type of master's degree, is a reliable step towards career success.

Why study a master's degree?

Almost all master's degrees can help boost your career prospects. The most common function is to differentiate yourself in a crowded market. Competition for the most sought-after jobs is greater than ever before, and more and more of the workforce have an undergraduate degree. Work experience is always valuable, but having a master's degree of st john's university can help you stand out even more.

Why specialize in business?

While just about any master's degree will come in handy, business degrees from st john's university is particularly worthwhile. This is for a number of reasons:

- Our degrees is versatile. The majority of jobs are in a 'business' of some sort, and the skills you learn in a business degree are highly transferable. On that note
- You'll gain highly desirable skills. There are certain skills that are handy in the workplace which any master's degree will help grow; time management, critical thinking and writing technique are all examples. Postgraduate business degrees go one step further. Not only will you have the chance to learn specialized professional skills in many business-related courses (accountancy etc.), but you'll develop an understanding of businesses and the environments they operate in, as well as skills such as strategic planning and project management.
- Specializing in business demonstrates a commitment to your career. Master's degrees in other areas are a wonderful opportunity to pursue subjects that you're passionate about, and many will be appreciated in the workplace too. However, this can't compete with the fact that the time you spend studying a master's in business is time you're spending in direct preparation for the workplace. Not only will you be demonstrating your ambition, but you'll also be showcasing a self-starting, self-motivated nature
- One of the most popular forms of studying business at postgraduate level is by doing a Master of Business Administration (MBA).
